The town used CPA funds to participate in two large open space and conservation acquisitions. The purchase or acquisition by eminent domain of the 24.6-acre Judah Eldredge property off Seth Whitefield Road for $369,000 was approved, as was another $200,000 to purchase a conservation restriction in conjunction with the Harwich Conservation Trust on the 15-acre Cornelius Pond property.

CPA funds in the amount of $650,000 will be used for an alum remediation treatment project at Hinckley's Pond, and $75,000 from the appropriation will be used to enhance public access to the pond from the nearby bike trail. Voters also approved $300,000 in CPA fund to be added to funds previously appropriated for the preservation work on the exterior facade of Brooks Free Library.
